CERTIFIED DOCUMENT TRANSLATIONS

For documents that require certified translations, our U.S.-based human translation team has you covered. For any content type, our team can provide a 100% accurate translation in more than 200 languages. Our language professionals are well versed in the slang, terminology and nuances of regional dialects as well as knowledgeable in legal terminology and "specialty language," including financial, intellectual property, medical and pharmaceutical content to ensure the most accurate translation.

Powerful Machine Translation to Expedite Document Translations

For large documents or high-volume business matters, leverage the power of machine translation to produce high-quality, accurate translations in less time and at a fraction of the cost associated with traditional translation methodologies.

Machine translation (MT) is the process in which software translates text from one language to another automatically, without human intervention. Modeled after the neural networks in the human brain, machine translation uses learning techniques to teach itself how to translate and continually improves its knowledge base to increase performance and create high-quality translations. The final result? A translation that is about 90% accurate, in a matter of hours, even minutes.

For large volumes of content, machine translation is helpful for categorizing content by subject matter or relevance. After the machine translation is complete, your team can determine which documents need post-editing by a human translator for a certified, 100% accurate translation.
